Activities

You can give lessons of your native language and apply your own skills that can enrich the community centre's offer of activities. You can join the project of the modern music choir and the fusion band s well as activities of sporting and artistic character. You can help in clubs and libraries. You will learn how to work together in a team of Czech volunteers and joint activities. You can learn how to lead language lessons and develop their ability to learn in an environment of trust and small groups. You can learn in the workshops to play a musical instrument and perform with a music group and a choir. You can provide new actions by being involved in their preparation, learn how to cook some traditional Czech dishes. You can learn to present your own activities and to engage in sports activities as well as club management. You can also learn how to work in the community centre library – for example by backing books.

Challenges

Work with a smaller group of children in the winter time. Joining a language-speaking group is difficult, though co-workers and most young people speak English. You will work with unskilled children from disturbed families. You will do a bit of gardening (cutting grass, raking leaves, cleaning-up snow in winter), and help by preparing refreshments for community centre events followed by cleaning.

Your profile

You should be open to work with the target group of teenagers and be able to apply some of your own skills. Musical and sporting talents are welcome.
